ctors, &c. How do you feel upon such matters? Do you think the Rev. gentleman had an eye to the future happiness of the contributors, or to the gifts to be given on the 1st of January? Yours, &c.

"COMPLIMENTS RETURNED.—EDS. TRIB-

UNE: I feel it my duty, as pastor of the A.

M. E. Church—on the corner of Jackson and Buffalo streets, Chicago—to say to those kind, liberal and thoughtful-minded ladies and gentlemen, both white and colored, who presented me those handsome Christmas presents. May God bless, preserve and keep you all under the apple of his eye, and ultimately save you; and I still have an eye to the New Year, at which time I expect to see the presenters coming in at Griswold street, No.

179. ELISHA WEAVER."

The above is an anonymous communication, from Chicago. We publish it in connection with the card of the Clergyman,

AN ATROCIOUS MURDER.

The usual quiet of our village was seriously disturbed on New Year's evening, by the commission, in one of its public streets, of a murder of the darkest dye, and without a shadow of provocation on the part of the victim. The attending circumstances, as elicited before the Jury of Inquest, were substantially as follows:

Patrick Connell, a young man of some eighteen or twenty years, who has resided for some time in this vicinity, visited our village on New Year's day, and in company with others drank freely of liquor; just at the edge of evening these devotees of Bacchus started for a stroll and soon found themselves in the vicinity of several of our Holland citizens, known as the "saw dust addition," where they met several Hollanders, one of them having an ax in his hand, he requested the owner to let him take it, this at first was refused; urging his request however under pretense of a desire to try its edge, upon a slab of wood lying close by, his wish was granted, and seizing the ax he threw it at a distance, and squaring himself, challenged the Hollander to fight, and at the same time commenced beating him, without any serious resistance on the part of the Hollander; his companions, however soon succeeded in getting him away from his assailant and one conducted him in-
